David N. Bernstein, MD, PhD, MBA, MEI is an orthopaedic surgery resident physician in the Harvard Combined Orthopaedic Residency Program (HCORP) based out of Massachusetts General Hospital and senior researcher at Harvard Business School, where he works alongside Professors Michael E. Porter and Robert (Bob) S. Kaplan to help “fix” health care delivery systems. He holds an appointment as a Visiting Professor at Semmelweis University in Budapest, Hungary. In addition, he is the Special Advisor for Patient-Reported Outcome Measures (PROMs) to the Orthopaedic Surgeon-in-Chief at Boston Children’s Hospital/Harvard Medical School and Special Assistant to the Chief Integration Officer at Mass General Brigham.

Dr. Bernstein’s research focuses on core health care delivery system transformation efforts, including evaluating patient-reported outcome measures (PROMs) and their use as part of routine clinical care to improve shared clinical decision-making and patient experience. He has not only been widely published in top tier peer-reviewed scientific journals but also mainstream media outlets. David received his Doctor of Medicine (MD) with Distinction in Research from the University of Rochester School of Medicine and Dentistry, Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in value-based health care from the University of Leiden in The Netherlands, and Master of Business Administration (MBA) from Simon Business School at the University of Rochester, where he was elected to the Beta Gamma Sigma honor society. In addition, he holds his Master in Entrepreneurship and Innovation with Distinction from the University of Luxembourg as a Fulbright Scholar. His Bachelor of Arts (AB) in Economics is from Bowdoin College.
