Dr. Cho is a trained behavior scientist and clinical epidemiologist. She completed her MA degree in 2004 at the University of Arkansas and her PhD in 2008 at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. Her primary research interests are the psycho-social problems caused by cancer and its treatment, as well as developing patient-reported outcome measures (PROMs). Dr. Cho leads several observational studies and clinical trials to identify the needs of cancer patients and their families, as well as to develop and implement education programs in clinics and communities.

Dr. Cho serves as the Chair of the Department of Clinical Research Design and Evaluation at SAIHST, Sungkyunkwan University, Seoul, Korea. Additionally, Dr. Cho is the Director of the Center for Clinical Epidemiology and the Cancer Education Center at Samsung Medical Center. She is also an adjunct professor in the Departments of Epidemiology and Health, Behavior and Society at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health, USA. Dr. Cho serves as the head of the PROMIS National Center in Korea, where she oversees initiatives to improve patient-reported outcomes and healthcare quality. As Deputy Editor of Palliative and Supportive Care, she is contributing to advancements in the field.
